THE SYDNEY MAIL.

A NEW SERIAL STORY.
By SYDNEY C. GRIER.
Was begun in "The Sydney Mail" of January 2nd.

It tells thrillingly how a Great Professor discovered a Cambridge student the heir to a lost European Royal House, how he summoned him to take up the cause of the country of his forefathers, and how this Heir, and his sister, a beautiful girl, and a self-willed Princess were all brought to the aid of the King.

STARKLING ADVENTURES.
To a denouement that must satisfy the most romantic reader, and the most of the Balkan peninsula, and a double love story, in which a gallant knightly officer forms one of the principal characters.

SYDNEY C. GRIER

as the past two years have been we shall ourselves cut the ground from under our own feet. If our docks and harbours continue to multiply as they have done our wool clip will be so increased that the supply will tend to overtake the demand, with lower prices as a consequence. Large as it is, the London market may be predictably affected from a seller's point of view if our exports of wheat and butter increase very materially, while the extraordinary prices that are at present being obtained for the chief industrial metals cannot but have the effect of stimulating production all over the world or reducing consumption. The silver miner of the Straits Settlements will strain every nerve to share the good prices now ruling till the day arrives in which their united efforts will have the effect of weakening prices of both metals. The copper deposits of Arizona and the spelter fields of Canada will be stimulated to increased development, just as will be our own fields of tin and copper. But such development work takes time. Mines cannot be brought to great productive capacity in a day, and judging from the position of the markets for these commodities as they stand at present there is little breathing time ahead before the reaction sets in. There is no doubt that 1906 has before it a brilliant prospect, and that when it draws to a close there is at least some indication that the position of New South Wales in particular, and Australia in general, will be greatly improved.

The Barren Kelp Scheme.—The Minister for Works is evidently very optimistic about the finding which the Public Works Committee will arrive at on the merits of the Barren Kelp Irrigation scheme. For a long time Mr. Lee has been most enthusiastic about the proposal. He recognises that even if the committee should find in its favour Parliament will be very cautious about recommending so important a work. He foresees that the committee will be very cautious about recommending so important a work. He foresees that the committee will be very cautious about recommending so important a work.

Fighting the Rabbits.—The alarming reports of the spread of the rabbit pest have spurred the Government into action. Parliament has voted £50,000 for expenditure on wire netting for the current year. In South Australia the rabbit is doing more mischief than in any other part of the colony. The State has been on a large scale and success has been achieved. Mr. Ashton, the Minister for Lands, has decided to see if anything can be learned from our neighbours. He has given instructions to Mr. Beekman, secretary to the Public Service, to send a party to one place to South Australia to make the rabbit problem into all the conditions surrounding the distribution of the netting. Mr. Beekman will be Mr. Sharp, chairman of the rabbit pest committee. A district where the rabbit pest is very serious. While Mr. Sharp will give attention to the wire netting, his chief mission will be to study the scrub-clearing operations at Tintinnara, and to see if in this district great areas of country are being cleared by means of traction engines and hauling ropes. Sometimes the engines are used with a stout wire rope linking the engine to the trees, and the rope dragging on the scrub clears the intervening space. Mr. Ashton is of opinion that the Tintinnara method might be adaptable to the Pilliga scrub.

Sunday Trading and the New Liquor Act.—Yesterday was the first Sunday since the Liquor Act came into operation, and even the most optimistic in the police force were surprised to learn that only six persons had been arrested during the day for drunkenness. The number of persons arrested during the rest of the season will be very moderate. During the last four months prices have been so high that growers generally have been tempted to realise with the greatest possible expedition. Those who usually hesitate between placing their produce in the hands of the London market have this season for the most part selected the former, being afraid to run the risk of delay in realisation here they might miss the market. The result of this has been that the stocks held over for the new year's sales are light, and arrivals coming to hand are also comparatively small. Sydney, it may be said, has a larger quantity than any other of the Australian wool-selling centres. It is estimated that there still remain some 120,000 bales to be offered in this market, while at Melbourne and Geelong from 30,000 to 50,000 bales are still to be submitted. In Adelaide the supply is now exhausted. When these stocks are disposed of buyers will have to depend upon the most part selected arrivals. The same factor that has tended to swell the local offerings during the earlier portion of the wool year will also operate in the direction of reducing the quantity available for the trade at the London sales this year. The absence of many clips will not infrequently make their way to London, and there will be a smaller than ever. This will be especially apparent later on in the year. There is no doubt that buyers early in the season forwarded to their principals abroad exaggerated estimates of the quantity of wool likely to be produced in Australia during the current season, and that they are not now being let down by actual results, and seeing that the wool trade continues exceptionally brisk, with good orders ahead, the prospects of the future of the wool market are highly encouraging. It is a safe prediction to make that there is no likelihood of lower prices than those ruling at the closing of 1905, though some practical buyers are concerned, though we must claim on behalf of Australians that they are entitled to a little reserve of sentiment in favour of a shipping company which has served us so long and loyally. It is some satisfaction to know, too, that the quality of the service is not to suffer. The Pacific Company leaves for its first steamer on the line, and it is reported that the new steamers are in process of building. The Orient people complain of the smallness of the mail subsidy, which is to run under the existing contract up to 1908. There is time in the interval to go thoroughly into the whole question again. The Orient steamers by that date will have carried Australian mails for 20 years, and so long a record is a credit to the company, and it is to be hoped that the Government will be able to secure a more satisfactory arrangement for the future.

PROSPECTS BEFORE COMMERCE.
Seldom has a new year been ushered in with brighter prospects before trade than at present. While our calculations abroad tend to qualify the optimism of our informed depreciation, the great producing interests at home are giving the lie to their slanders. An estimate of the value of the primary production of the State has been placed at no less a figure than 35 millions sterling. For a mere handful of people this is a wonderful result, and that has never been reached by any other community in the world. That we have had extraneous assistance in attaining this record must be admitted. No credit rests with us that the price of wool is exceptionally high; that butter is realising extremely remunerative rates; that wheat is above the average level of values; that tin, copper, and silver are at prices that have seldom been reached in the past century, and never before contemporaneously. But the opportunity having occurred, our people have not been slow to grasp it, and to turn it to our collective advantage.

How long the markets of the world will continue so markedly in our favour it is, of course, impossible to conjecture. There will be no decided reaction for some months ahead seems probable, for the statistical position of the leading articles of export is still strongly in favour of sellers. How long Australia will be blessed with good seasons it is also not safe to hazard an opinion. All that can be said in its favour is that the law of probabilities points to there being a few consecutive seasons of abundance following on the long series of lean years, of which we recently had so sad an experience. It therefore behoves us to spare no effort in making the very best of the position as we now stand. It is that which is certain. If we have another season or two as productive land, there should not be in the future any such unfortunate state of things as consists in 1000 persons applying for seven blocks of land.

There is no doubt that buyers early in the season forwarded to their principals abroad exaggerated estimates of the quantity of wool likely to be produced in Australia during the current season, and that they are not now being let down by actual results, and seeing that the wool trade continues exceptionally brisk, with good orders ahead, the prospects of the future of the wool market are highly encouraging. It is a safe prediction to make that there is no likelihood of lower prices than those ruling at the closing of 1905, though some practical buyers are concerned, though we must claim on behalf of Australians that they are entitled to a little reserve of sentiment in favour of a shipping company which has served us so long and loyally. It is some satisfaction to know, too, that the quality of the service is not to suffer. The Pacific Company leaves for its first steamer on the line, and it is reported that the new steamers are in process of building. The Orient people complain of the smallness of the mail subsidy, which is to run under the existing contract up to 1908. There is time in the interval to go thoroughly into the whole question again. The Orient steamers by that date will have carried Australian mails for 20 years, and so long a record is a credit to the company, and it is to be hoped that the Government will be able to secure a more satisfactory arrangement for the future.

PROSPECTS BEFORE COMMERCE.
Seldom has a new year been ushered in with brighter prospects before trade than at present. While our calculations abroad tend to qualify the optimism of our informed depreciation, the great producing interests at home are giving the lie to their slanders. An estimate of the value of the primary production of the State has been placed at no less a figure than 35 millions sterling. For a mere handful

MESSRS. BAUFOR HOWLED DOWN.

LONDON, Jan. 6.

Mr. Gerald Baufor, in addressing a meeting in the Jewish quarter of Leeds, which he is contesting, was howled down, largely owing to his advocacy of the restriction of Alien Immigration Act.

Mr. A. J. Baufor, of the constituency he is contesting, spoke with great difficulty, owing to a constant fire of interruptions and disorderly noises. He said he hoped that his opponents were not imitating the people at Derby, who prevented Mr. Chamberlain speaking.

Mr. Baufor proceeded to express his opinion that the Government had not the slightest intention of abolishing Chinese labour on the land. Mr. Baufor concluded by unfurling his retaliation policy, and a vote of confidence in him was carried by a large majority.

CIVIL POWER IN INDIA.

FAITH IN HOME RULE.

Mr. John Morley, Secretary of State for India, speaking at Arbroath, said that the civil power in India must be indisputably supreme over the military power.

No reform in the machinery of the 15th Government would be found to be permanently effective or a successful substitute for the policy of an elected representative authority, with its powers and functions defined by Parliament, "but that," said Mr. Morley, "will not prevent me co-operating with the carrying out of more limited reforms not incompatible with the aforesaid ideal."

The Earl of Elgin, Secretary of State for the Colonies, has forbidden the granting of further licenses to import Chinese. The mineowners understand that the 11,000 already nominated will be admitted, and these Chinese will be sufficient to supply the Rand for two years.

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

The "Standard" has consulted counsel on the action of the Earl of Elgin in prohibiting further importation of Chinese coolies into the Transvaal. Counsel declares that the Labour Importation Ordinance of the Transvaal was duly passed by the Transvaal Legislature, and thereupon the Crown notified that it would not be disallowed. Therefore, it became law. Counsel continues: "I know of no power vested in the Earl of Elgin, as Secretary of State for the Colonies, to suspend the ordinance on his own initiative. Any further action must be exercised through the Privy Council."

A FRENCH DUEL.

LAST SEVENTY-FIVE MINUTES.

LONDON, Jan. 6.

The quarrel between General Brugere, Commander-in-Chief of the French Army, and General Percin, last November, arising out of the delations, and resulting in General Brugere being ordered a fortnight's confinement in his quarters, was the cause of a duel, fought yesterday between Major Driens, the son-in-law of General Brugere, and General Percin.

The duel, which was fought at Paris with swords, lasted 75 minutes. General Percin was wounded in the eighth and thirteenth rounds, in the same spot on the right forearm.

General Brugere's being ordered to confinement was the direct result of an incident which recently caused much excitement in military circles in France. In the delations which led to the downfall of General Andre no superior officer has played a more important part in his chief's efforts to purge the army of all but true blue republicans than General Percin.

General Brugere with other officers felt strongly against the subject. General Brugere and General Percin were accustomed to ride in the Bois each morning, but the former was always accompanied by his orderly officer, General Brugere, who for his part always rode alone, and for his part always rode alone, and for his part always rode alone.

THE TOBACCO COMMISSION.

RESPECTING GOVERNMENT MONOPOLY.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Mr. Solomon John, a tobacco manufacturer, gave evidence before the Tobacco Commission yesterday. Asked if he favoured the Government taking over the tobacco industry: "If a monopoly existed," he said, "I advise the Government to keep their hands off it. I know the man who actually directed the business, and I know the man who actually directed the business, and I know the man who actually directed the business."

Mr. Thomas S. M. Stanley, president of the Victorian branch of the Federated Tobacco Workers, also gave evidence, and favoured a Government monopoly.

AN INTERESTING INTERLUDE.

Witness further said that the dispute of the society with Cameron and Co. was in process of settlement, but was not finally settled, therefore he would prefer not to say anything about it. In reply to Senator Stewart he said that some money was advanced from the Crewek mining district fund to Jacob and Co., greater than that for which they applied. When the interest was not met a commission was appointed by the State House, and the matter was fixed up, although without a final settlement. Witness soon afterwards concluded his evidence.

Mr. Jacobs, who was present, then said: "Mr. Jacobs, I should like to refer to the statement, 'I am a person of means.' Mr. Jacobs: It is a personal matter. The chairman (firmly): You must not make any statement. You must withdraw. Mr. Jacobs: Then I withdraw, but I want to make a statement. It will only take a few minutes."

After considering the matter in private the commission expressed its willingness to hear Mr. Jacobs' statement.

Mr. Jacobs: It is with reference to the answer given by Mr. Stanley to what was evidently a prearranged question by Senator Stewart.

The chairman: You must not reflect on a member of the commission.

The chairman: I am only speaking what is in my heart.

The chairman: You must withdraw the expression.

Mr. Jacobs withdrew the statement. He took exception to what had been brought before the commission, the obvious effect of discrediting him and the firm he was connected with. The loan was obtained by his father in his personal capacity, and was not a business transaction. There was an increase of 12 oz per sheep, as compared with the previous year, with a proportionate increase for lambs. Sheep in the district now number 1,300,000, showing an increase of 200,000 for the year. The value of the clip is estimated at considerably over £300,000, to this must be added the sum realised by sale of fat lambs, which last year reached the highest point on record—13s—at the local railway station.

BOAT-THROWING IN MELBOURNE.

EXPLOSION IN DETECTIVE HOUSE.

BUILDING SET ON FIRE.

REASON FOR THE OUTRAGE.

SUSPECTED REVENUE FOR PROSECUTION.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

At half-past 3 o'clock this morning an attempt was made to blow up the house of Detective O'Donnell, at the corner of Gertrude and Nicholson streets, Fitzroy. Someone entered the front garden, and a piece of glass out of the drawing-room window with a diamond, and then threw a finger-stone through the window, which exploded in a few seconds. Detective O'Donnell, who was awakened by the sounds of breaking glass, went to the window of his room, which was on a second floor, and saw a man running along the Exhibition Gardens. The explosion followed immediately, and Mr. O'Donnell's attention was then given to the state of his house, which was set on fire by the explosion. The fire brigade attended, and put out the fire.

After the explosion at Detective O'Donnell's house, Michael O'Donnell, the detective's son, ran across Nicholson-street to the fire alarm station, and rang the bell. The alarm was sounded, and the fire brigade attended, and put out the fire.

The most gratifying feature of the day, however, was the small number of persons charged with offences. The general average of persons charged in Melbourne on Sunday is about 50.

Inquiry after inquiry at all the stations met with the same result. "No drunks to-day." And in speaking of the conduct of the hotel-keepers in their districts the language of officers was almost unanimous. "The hotels are certainly to the point, and in many cases facious." "The publicans have thrown up the sponge. They have all agreed to sell the hotels to the police. They have all agreed to sell the hotels to the police. They have all agreed to sell the hotels to the police."

The police in their division have gone to the mountains. "They are types of the answers by the police. The public will not take risks, because the penalty is so great. A person found on the premises is liable to a fine of £2, and the hotel-keeper is liable to a fine of £2. In addition, four convictions against a publican will cause a disqualification of the house for a period of three years. So far as the drinking public are concerned, the police are not to be blamed. The police are not to be blamed. The police are not to be blamed."

THE LIQUOR ACT.

AND SUNDAY TRADING.

REMARKABLY QUIET DAY.

A "great success," said a prominent inspector of police when questioned concerning the effect of the Liquor Act on Sunday trading in his division, and inquiries from other divisions were made, and the result was fully supported his remark. Great interest centred in yesterday, owing to the fact that it was the first Sunday since the Act came into operation. Considerable speculation was indulged in by the public as to how the public would respect the law. Some were of opinion that many would endeavour to elude the vigilance of the police, and carry on their unlawful traffic. Others were inclined to the belief that the public would, in the great majority of instances, prove themselves to be law-abiding citizens, and the latter belief was found to be correct. In only two cases were men found on licensed premises during prohibited hours, and the total number to be prosecuted was only two. The most gratifying feature of the day, however, was the small number of persons charged with offences. The general average of persons charged in Melbourne on Sunday is about 50.
